SHOOTING FRAY AT COTTONWOOD

At a late hour this afternoon news reached The Eagle office that John Ankw shot and dangerously wounded John Jones in a difficulty near Cottonwood.

According to the report, it is feared Jones will not live. The particulars are not available at this hour.

Slapped Woman But Was Only Playing

When accused of slapping a negro woman in the face, Cassie Dick, colored, told Acting Mayor Whiddon today that he was only playing with her, but the court decided this to be a rather vicious form of play, and consequently fined the defendant $11.

Police Officer Spivey said he saw the negro man slap the woman, and that she said he had pulled her out of a house and administered the blow. The defendant said he just meant to take her to a dance. Will Johnson, colored, was fined $6 on a charge of fighting.

Negro Preacher Cashed Wrong Check

Rev. A. T. Divins, a negro preacher, who told the police that he had a charge at Noma Fla., was arrested yesterday and given a hearing before President of the City Council A. D. Whiddon, upon an accusation of making a false statement and obtaining money.

It seems that the negro found a check for $8.40 which was written by a Mr. Jones. The negro took the check to G. B. Mansil, and had it cashed, telling Mr. Mansil that his name was Jones.

The defendant was fined $50 or sentenced to 150 days hard labor.

Young Girl Is Charged With Murdering Infant

In connection with the finding of the body of an infant in a well at Headland, a Miss Williams of that place, has been placed under arrest, according to news brought to Dothan today by Floyd Hodges, who came to this city to summon two witnesses.

A coroner's inquest is being held this afternoon. The girl in the case, it is said, was arrested shortly after the finding of the body of the baby in the well yesterday afternoon, and has been under guard at her home since that time.

The Eagle telephoned City Marshal Dawsey at Headland this afternoon, and he verified the report that a Miss Williams had been arrested, but he did not know her first name, he said.

Later: A telegram from a representative of The Eagle says that the coroner's jury held Miss Ruth Williams responsible for the murder of the infant.

REDUCTION OF COTTON ACREAGE FOR 1915

By J. F. DEGGAR.

It is now generally believed that the surest way to cause cotton of both the crops of 1914 and 1915 to sell at a figure above the cost of production is for farmers to give prompt and conclusive proof that the acreage in this staple will be greatly reduced in 1915. State conventions of representative cotton growers in Alabama, Texas and Louisiana, declared by resolutions in September, 1914, that it would be necessary to reduce the 1915 acreage to one-half of that of 1914. The Mississippi Cotton Convention even passed a resolution that it would be advisable to plant no cotton at all in 1915.

Certainly a very large crop of American cotton has been made in 1914 and a large proportion of it, variously estimated at four to eight million bales, must be carried over. The effect will be for this surplus to compete with and lower to a ruinous figure the price of cotton produced in 1915, unless a tremendous reduction is made in acreage.

Apparently spinners do not place any reliance on such expressions as mentioned above regarding reduction in cotton acreage. The one means by which farmers can themselves, and with the support of their merchants and bankers, avoid an utterly ruinous price for cotton in 1915, and by the same means raise the price of that already produced, consists in planting in other crops a much larger part of their lands than usual, so as to leave no room for growing more than half a crop of cotton in 1915.

How can this be done? The means by which this determination to reduce acreage may be most quickly shown to the world is by the farmers of the Cotton Belt nowing this fall several times as many acres of small grains as they have ever sown before. In later articles on oats and wheat, the effort will be made to show that, for other reasons also, oats and (under favorable conditions in certain parts of Ala-hama) wheat are two of the crops that should be largely substituted for cotton.

Can we doubt what would be the effect on the price of cotton of the present crop, and ultimately on that produced in 1915, if the farmers of Alabama would sow in October and November, 1914, a million acres of oats (about a three-fold increase) and, in the northern two-thirds of the State) a quarter of a million acres in wheat, and if the farmers of other states would make similar increase in their sowing of the small grains? The increase thus proposed in the acreage of small grains in Alabama would take the place of nearly a million acres of cotton, and hence it would immediately raise the price of our great staple. Then in the acreage of small grains in turn, sugar cane and various other summer crops of 1915 should be increased to the extent of nearly a million acres, the maximum amount of cotton that could be produced in 1915 would need to be grown on only about half the usual acreage. This prospect would give good ground for the expectation of profitable prices for cotton in 1915.

It is intensely realized that to plant only half as much cotton as usual in 1915 involves an entire rearrangement of the usual farming system, a disturbance of labor conditions and probably a decrease of revenue, as compared with that expected in normal years. But better this decrease in revenue, than a general inconvenience and occasional disappointment in some of the crops substituted for cotton, than that well nigh universal bankruptcy which should involve farmers, merchants and others as a result of two years of cotton prices far below the cost of production.

What Are The Most Advisable Substitutes for Cotton? In seeking an answer to this question, we must keep in mind, first, the present and prospective high prices for food products, including all grains and meats, as a result of the European war, and, second, the necessity for farmers, spending no money next year for any crops or products that they can grow at home.

The general principles that should govern in the substituting of other products in part for cotton are chiefly the following:

1. Produce an ample amount of crops that can be consumed on the farm, thus eliminating the too-costly expenditure for shipped-in corn, oats, hay, canned goods, meat, lard, etc.
2. Produce for sale a surplus of those staple food crops or products that are in wide demand, e. g. corn, oats, wheat, pork, beef, butter, etc.
3. Prepare pastures of such kinds that the hogs, cattle, colts and other live stock may be able to pay a profitable rental for the pasture lands.
4. Grow limited amounts of those crops that the local market will consume in limited amounts, such as sugar cane, sweet potatoes, melons, and other truck crops; but remember that competition in 1915 will probably be stronger in the production and sale of these perishable products, and that hard times may decrease the purchasing power of the local consumers. Hence, rather than that neighbors should by competition reduce prices of such truck crops to an unprofitable point, the surplus of these products should be fed to hogs.
5. Devote attention to the minor industries on the farm, such as poultry, gardening and canning, both in order to save expenses and to increase by ever so little the total sales.
6. Utilize as much as practicable of the poorest land for growing soil-improving crops, so that the farm may be producing fertilizer in 1915, which will certainly be salable in 1916 in the form of increased yields of cotton, corn and all other crops. Moreover, cow peas, velvet beans or other legumes thus grown largely for soil improvement can also be profitably utilized in 1915, either for seed production, hay or pasture.
7. Wherever possible make the hog one of the sale products of the farm; this cannot be done with profit chiefly on corn, but it can be done by providing an abundance of suitable pastures and of special hog crops, such as peanuts, soy beans, velvet beans, etc., and by taking precautions that are now practicable against hog cholera.

8. Increase the number of live stock on the farm, and especially retain or add to the number of heifers and cows.

9. Substitute brood sows for a part of the mules wherever financial conditions, supervision and decreased farm work make this practicable.

10. Organize farmers clubs in each community with special reference to co-operative marketing. The immediate object may be cheaper warehousing of cotton, and a second object should be the co-operative shipping and sell of diversified products. Selling these requires more co-operation than does the sale of cotton; hence farmers must ship and sell diversified products together. By such co-operation in warehousing or in shipping together carload lots of oats, corn, hay, sweet potatoes, peanuts and other products, farmers may obtain the best prices, make great savings in freight rates and utilize the special knowledge of some one man or of some committee of three men selected in each community for the special purpose of keeping posted regarding the best markets and best selling dates for the various products of the community.

It is requested that when farmers' clubs are organized, the address of the president and secretary be reported to the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn.

Later articles in this series will deal with the principal crops or other products that may be substituted for cotton.

WANTED—Position of any kind, on farm or in city, by young man 25 years old. address "L" c/o Eagle.

Mr. Lem Walden of Beale Seven was in the city today on business.

CHARITY STORIES BEGIN AT HOME

C. M. Davis Says Belgium Relief Fund is Important Philanthropy. — Says Money Should Be Used to Buy a Bale of Cotton.

That the determination of many cities in the South to send relief funds to Belgium is misplaced philanthropy, and that charity should begin at home, is the opinion of C. M. Davis, a typewriter salesman, with headquarters in Birmingham.

"The money which you people will donate to the Belgium relief fund at your Thanksgiving services would be more appropriately invested, and would be decidedly of a more Christian trend, if you would use it to buy a bale of cotton and help the farmers in your section some of whom may be practically on the brink of starvation. Of course I do not know of any specific instances, but at the same time, and especially under the present strained financial conditions, I think charity should begin at home. I believe that is a proper manifestation of the true Christian spirit."

Get After Mosquitoes.

Mr. Davis likes Dothan, and he says that he may at some future date make this city his headquarters, but he thinks a campaign should be started at once to rid the city of garbage cans, trash and various debris, in order to exterminate mosquitoes, which he says he understands are a general nuisance here in the summer. A clean-up crusade and the carrying out of a "city beautiful" idea would result in a great improvement, he thinks.

Mr. Davis is an extensive traveler, having toured Northwest Canada, the Western States, Mexico, and he also says he has been abroad several times. He talks interestingly of the great Northwest, which has attracted so many immigrants, and believes now that the tide should turn southward. "There are greater opportunities in the South than in Northwest Canada," he said.

"There are approximately 100,000 immigrants who go from this country to Northwest Canada each year," he said, "and now in view of the effects of the war in all of Europe's provinces and possessions, one of which is Canada, I think the time ripe for the South to inaugurate a campaign for more people."

While Canada is considered a one-crop country, he says a campaign for diversification is also being inaugurated in that country, which he says has worse drawbacks than the boll weevil. He thinks Southern farmers should diversify.

Davis is an interesting fellow, and aside from his typewriter work, has a lease on Fant Lake at Birmingham, where he teaches swimming lessons. He is an expert swimmer, and has taught thousands this art in proving this he exhibited an article from The Birmingham Age-Herald, written by the late "Dolly Dailymore," in which he was interviewed on swimming.

Editorial Note—The Eagle prints the opinions of Mr. Davis on the Belgian Relief Fund project, but this should not be construed to be the policy of this paper unless the opinions on that subject, or unless an editorial position, is the matter.

ADVERTISING FOR MARKETS AND EMPLOY AGENTS TO HUNT THEM

1. In order to get top prices for any products, they must be standardized—must be of same variety or properly assorted varieties, and properly packed. Only by co-operation can we get farmers of a community to grow the same kind of product or to pack uniformly.

2. Only by marketing in considerable quantities can adequate prices be obtained. This again necessitates co-operation.

3. Markets must be served regularly year after year and season after season, if the trade of good customers is to be held. This also calls for business organization.

4. Organization can advertise on a scale which individuals cannot afford, and can send out agents to hunt the best markets when individuals could do nothing except accept the first offer made them.—The Progressive Farmer.

WHAT IS LEFT FOR COTTON
FARMERS TO DO.

The following program seems to us sound and timely:

1. Hold your cotton—in the seed if you can, as this plan is said to help the quality of lint, and it will keep down ginning receipts.

2. If you must get some money on cotton, gin it, and try to borrow from a bank. The bank will frequently lend direct to the farmer for half the cost of getting the money through a lawyer or professional money lender.

If you must sell outright pool your cotton with that of other neighbors who must sell; see that it is properly graded, and work together to see that you get full market prices for both lint and seed.

4. Face the fact that we must cut our cotton acreage 50 per cent next year. Make plans to raise all the feedstuffs needed on your own farm; and make plans, too, to co-operate with your neighbors in growing, grading, shipping, and selling the excess products which you must grow on the acreage you take from cotton production.

5. Finally, demand that your State Department, Agricultural college, etc., arrange to give next year the same effective aid in crop marketing—through institutes, bulletins, personal assistance, and demonstrations—that they have heretofore given in crop-making.—The Progressive Farmer.

THE SUPPRESSION OF FOODS' ALCOHOL.

Wood alcohol, or methyl alcohol, or Columbian spirit, is manufactured largely as a cheap solvent for paints and other substances. It is very volatile and exceedingly dangerous when it is inhaled or absorbed into the blood and heart and very depressing and poisonous, producing death in a very short time when inhaled in concentrated form. If death does not result, permanent blindness from optic nerve atrophy usually occurs.

Seventeen cases of this kind were reported from the state of New York alone, during the past year. Wood alcohol is used largely for varnishing the interior of beer vats. Such vats have a small vent hole in the bottom and a small manhole in the top, and no other openings. The painters go inside the vat and paint the interior with shellac, containing wood alcohol. They remain inside the vat for about twenty minutes, as the fumes are so powerful that they cannot remain any longer but must come out and breathe some fresh air. To hasten their work they use broad white wash brushes which spread the shellac quickly over large surfaces. No effort is made to force fresh air into the vat.

The use of expensive tools is not necessary in the trades, even if wood alcohol is abandoned. What is known as denatured alcohol can be used, as it is just as cheap as wood alcohol and is not injurious. Such countries as Germany, England, etc., have long since abandoned poisonous alcohol. Why not the United States?—Should the manufacture of this poison be continued, because some manufacturers have millions of dollars locked up in their factories? Or, would it not be better to suppress this kind of alcohol and compel them to produce alcohol of a non-injurious quality.—Medical Journal.

NOT THE CASE IN DOTHAN.

The Dothan Eagle is still crying for a reduction in store rents. It may be possible that the cry is directed in the wrong direction. There is such a thing as rent not being sufficient to pay for taxes, and may be this is the case with some of the Dothan stores. A man has a right to expect a sufficient rent to meet the taxes and insurance on the building and in some cases we know of, they don't get it.—Eufaula Citizen.

That may be the case in Eufaula but not so in Dothan. Most of the stores here are paying a big rate of interest on the investment, for many of them were bought or built when the cost was much less than at present.

The man who says war will end in three months has as much right to take a crack at it as any one else. No one, however, has anything definite as to when it will end.—Dothan Eagle. Try this one, Bro. Hall: The war will end when Germany surrenders unconditionally. We believe that to be a definite fact. It may take one year or it may take five to bring Germany to terms; but there will be no peace until Germany is whipped.—Greenville Watchman.

A MATTER OF "SMELL."

The Montgomery Times goes us one better. It says: "Hog-killing weather rather early, and my! how good the sausages and chitterlings do smell!"

That's a pure matter of taste. We have no objections to the smell of sausage, although they only eat when being fried, so far as the smell goes, but chitterlings; well, as hereinbefore mentioned, that's a matter of taste and a more or less vitiated one. We can see how people can eat chitterlings by holding their nose, but never yet, and we have officiated at many a hog-killing, have we seen a person who admitted that they enjoyed the effluvia that attacks you from the boiling pot of chitterlings. We understand thoroughly that the Times man doesn't stand alone in his idea of what a good thing is; many people do not chitterlings, even after they have converted almost every other part of the hog's anatomy to table use, including the head, the liver, the lights, the feet, the brains, but it has sufficed the undersigned to let the chitterlings pass, when all of these other things have been set on the table.

Here! What about this thing, Brother Advertiser and Cousin Charles Lewis? Aren't you going to sleep on the job? Read this:

Panama, Nov. 14.—Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama Canal zone, signed an order today placing all persons engaged in canal transportation on a strict temperance basis. The order provides that persons employed on the canal, who have marine licenses, must abstain absolutely from liquor. This includes pilots, captains of tug boats, mates and others.—Greenboro Watchman.

WANTS TO ATTEND
FUNERAL.

Senator Vardaman is not alone in his desire to attend the funeral of every crowned head in Europe. There are hundreds of people who believe their financial conditions would be in better shape but for the crowned heads, and there are millions of Europeans who feel that they would be at home, about their business, with the male members of their families with them, but for the same crowned heads. Vardaman, not that he wishes something the rest of us do not, but he merely has the nerve, or outspokenness to say what he wants, and he isn't using it as campaign thunder, either.

The Scottsboro (Ala.) Citizen says: The Alabama Good Roads Association has gone on record as favoring the establishing of the State Highway Department as a permanent department of the State. The association should have gone farther and suggested that the office of State Highway Engineer be a permanent office and name a salary for said official. The office is simply at the will of the commission and is paid $4500 per annum, with all traveling expenses and with assistants to help do the work. The salary is all out of proportion compared with the other State officers and the work performed. The extravagant salary and expenses paid the State Engineer and the expenses of the commission in spending an appropriation of $144,000 annually is all out of proportion and should be remedied by the coming legislature.

ALL INTERESTS MUST COOPERATE CHANGE CONDITIONS.

There is no doubt about it, that at the present time it is difficult for Southern farmers to market corn, oats, hay, meat, etc., right in the very towns that are sending thousands of dollars North and West every year for just three products. As the Atlanta Georgian remarked the other day:

"It has been demonstrated beyond controversy that if the cotton farmer should diversify to such an extent as to make a surplus of corn, hay, wheat, oats, and other food products he would find no market in Georgia towns for his surplus."

Similarly, an Alabama lady in a letter now before us declares: "A small farmer can manage better on cotton at seven cents a pound than on feedstuffs for which he has no sale."

A North Carolina farmer reports that he can get only $12 a ton for hay where Western hay sells for $20.

As we see it, it is an indictment of our civilization and intelligence here in the South that people can say that there is "no sale," "no market," for foodstuffs and feedstuffs for which the average Southern State sends North and West nearly a million dollars a week. It's time for co-operation—time for merchants, bankers, farmers, landlords and tenants all to co-operate to end this disgraceful situation. Here are the charges now made:

1. Merchants will not trouble to develop profitable cash markets for home-grown feedstuffs and food products.
2. Bankers will not advance on crops other than cotton.
3. Landlords demand rent in the form of cotton.

Now let us see just what sort of co-operation is needed to remedy question of providing markets. Because if satisfactory markets were available, bankers would be willing to lend on other crops than cotton.

But our point now is that neither the very towns that are sending thousands of dollars North and West every year for just three products. As the Atlanta Georgian remarked the other day:

PELLAGRA DATA BEING

SECURED IN MONTGOMERY

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 14.—Dr. J. F. Siler, member of the Robert M. Thompson Pellagra Commission, reached Montgomery Sunday night to complete his investigations of pellagra in this city. The Thompson commission has been at work nearly three years in an effort to locate the cause of the disease. The investigations have been completed and all the data will be assembled and analyzed soon in New York, the headquarters of the commission. It is expected that a final report will be made early next spring.

The commission seeks by an examination of sanitary and economic conditions to ascertain the causes of the dreadful disease. The effects of the disease in its various forms and surroundings are taken into consideration and from these effects as well as other conditions, it is hoped to determine the origin of pellagra.

Dr. Siler was reared and educated in Troy and is a captain in the medical corps of the United States army. However he was assigned several years ago to the pellagra commission. Probably the most extensive probes have been made by Dr. Siler in South Carolina. His last work was completed there in the last few days.

He was in Montgomery recently and made a preliminary survey here. On this trip he will remain four or five days to finish up his labors after which he will go back to Jacksonville, Fla., next week to read a paper on "Sanitation" before the American Public Health Association.

Pellagra investigations are also being made by the United States Public Health Service with the same end in view as the Thompson Commission.

REFUSES WRIT OF ERROR

TO LEO M. FRANK

Washington, Nov. 13.—Justice Lamar today refused to issue a writ of error to bring to the Supreme court for review the conviction of Leo M. Frank, for the murder of Mary Phagan, a factory girl in Atlanta, Ga., in 1915.

Attorneys applied to Justice Lamar for the writ on the ground that a right under the federal constitution had been denied Frank when the jury's verdict was returned during his absence from the court room.

Henry Alexander, attorney for Frank, stated he was unable to say whether the application for the writ would be presented to the other justices or not until he had consulted with his associate, Henry Peoples, who is in the suburbs of the city.

Justice Lamar in denying the writ explained his action in a written formal opinion.

DANDY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

Scale Drive—Chokes out the Hair And Prevents its Growth.

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arsanol; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and itching of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arsanol at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces in all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

LIFE IS REAL

Life is what we make out of it, and if we fail to make the best of the situation that is confronting us today we have failed to appreciate life as we should, and especially is this so when you continue to PAY HIGH RENTS when you could OWN YOUR OWN PROPERTY by paying this rent money as a payment on a home.

We have some ideal homes that we can sell with A SMALL CASH PAYMENT, and the remainder paid just like you was paying rent, and if you are awake to the true situation you will change your tactics, and consider THE FUTURE instead of THE PRESENT.

LITTLE THINGS

A good bye kiss is a little thing,
With your hand on the door to go;
But it takes the venom out of the sting
Of a thoughtless word or a cruel fling.
That you made an hour ago.

A kiss of greeting is sweet and rare,
After the toll of the day;
But it smoothes the furrows out of the care
And gives on the forehead you once called fair,
In the years that have flown away.

'Tis a little thing to say, "You are kind;
I love you, my dear," each night,
For it sends a thrill thru the heart,
I find,
For love is tender, as love is blind,
As we climb life's ragged height.
We starve each other for love's caress;
We take, but do not give,
It seems so easy some soul to bless,
'Till 'tis bitter and hard to live.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unkenville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to any good,
had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live.
Some one advised me to take Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued to use it, and now I am well and strong.
"I have always recommended your medicine over all I was so wonderfully benefited by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."
—MRS. MARTHA BRADY, Box 1144, Unkenville, Missouri.

The nature of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of men know as that there—they tell the truth, else they could not have been restored to health and vigor. This compound is so strong—it has stood the test of time.

If you are any complicated you should write to Lydia E. Pinkham Co., Lowell, Mass. Co. (consultation free). Your letter will be opened and answered by a woman and physician.

Things of Interest to Women—

Miss Ella Borland—Farmer—As Miss Borland's customers are largely well-to-do New York families and city clubs, it is probably to her business advantage that she is what is called a society girl. She was twenty-one years old when she started a farm on the Hudson; and now, after four years of effort, with over nine hundred White Wyandottes assisting her by producing thousands of salable eggs weekly, she has amply demonstrated the truth of the proposition on which her venture was based—that a girl can make farming pay. Miss Borland specializes in all kinds of poultry, eggs, and butter, but eggs are her mainstay; the method of marketing them she has found most profitable is that of selling to private customers under yearly contracts that require the delivery of specified dozens of eggs weekly at fixed prices.

Margaret Anglin, a Reviver of Greek Drama—To appear on the stage of the beautiful Greek theatre of the University of California is of itself an honor coveted by ambitious actors; wherefore, Miss Margaret Anglin has special reason to be proud of having been invited by the university authorities as the sole producer of Greek drama at Berkeley during the period of the Panama Pacific Exposition. Miss Anglin will produce the Medea of Euripides with a new musical setting interpreted by a great orchestra, and with the chorle and solo dances under the direction of a classic dancer of international repute. After the California performances she will probably present the Medea in Germany, Russia, Scandinavia, France and Italy. It was the success of Miss Anglin's productions of the Antigone and the Electra of Sophocles that brought her the invitation again to appear in the celebrated open air theatre of the university, which has witnessed the most serious efforts of such artists as Sara Bernhardt, Sothern and Marlowe, Madame Nordica and Maud Adams. That the production shall not lack true Hellenic flavor, Professor William Dillam Ames, of the department of literature and chairman of the musical and dramatic committee of the university, recently went to Greece to make researches for Miss Anglin, who will also visit the scene of the ancient legend to acquire the correct atmosphere.

Citizens Complain
About Water Puddle

A puddle of water and mud has accumulated at the intersection of Main and Appletree streets, caused by a bursted water pipe, opposite the Kentucky hotel, which has not been fixed.
The water runs from a point at or near the hotel to Appletree street, where it forms in a puddle. Citizens on East Main street say they have reported the matter to the police and to a member of the City Council, but that nothing has been done to relieve the situation. The pipe has been bursted since Thursday, it is said.

NEAR DEATH
BY SMOTHERING

But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death.
Medicines patched me up for awhile but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it.
It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.
I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles."

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength.
If you are a woman, give it a fair trial.
It should surely help you, as it has a million others.
Get a bottle of Cardui to-day.
